SAILOR RESEARCH DATABASES

Maryland's public libraries share a collection of Internet-based databases, purchased through the through Sailor database budget, which is provided to ensure all Maryland residents have equitable access to a common collection of core online research databases. This common collection anchors the broader collections of online databases provided locally by the libraries.

Sailor Research Databases are supported by the State of Maryland through the annual State Library Resource Center grant and made available free of charge to Maryland residents. The Database Review Committee was established by the Maryland Library Consortium to select and negotiate database products on behalf of Maryland libraries through Sailor.

Every Marylander will find something that supports his or her information needs in this collection, whether the interest is personal, professional, recreational or educational.
